Attorney General Tells Court That Sir Roger Had Spent Much Time in Irish Prison Camps in Germany to Get Them to Join Germany and Aid in the Defeat of England.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM)
London, May 15.—Sir Roger Casement, who only a few years ago achieved international fame for the services he rendered his government in the exposure of the Putumayo rubber atrocities, today faced the bar in an ordinary police court for a preliminary examination to determine whether he should be held for trial on the charge of high treason against the same government in connection with the rebellion in Ireland. Beside Casement stood Daniel Julian Bailey, who faced a similar charge. No in many years had so much popular interest been manifested in a case before the courts. This is due not only to the prominence of Casement, but also because it was expected evidence would be produced, which would lay bare a widespread plot resulting in the revolt.

There was an unexpected number of applications for seats in the little courtroom, but admission was restricted to about 100 persons, including press representatives.

Among the earliest arrivals in the court was Sir Horace Plunkett, of the department of agriculture in Ireland. It was understood Sir Horace was merely a spectator and would take no part in the day's proceedings. A number of relatives and friends of Casement, including seven handsomely gowned women, also reached court at an early hour and were provided with seats well to the front.

The stage was all set when the principal was led into the court, Sir John Dickinson, who presided, the lawyers and witnesses all having taken their places before Casement arrived at 10:40 o'clock and entered the dock.

Far from appearing deeply disturbed at his position, Sir Roger maintained much of his characteristic complaisance. He smiled and nodded as he saw friends in the courtroom.

With Sir Roger was Daniel Bailey, an Irish soldier captured by the Germans early in the war. He went from Germany to Ireland in the submarine with Sir Roger, and was taken prisoner at Tralee.

As the examination proceeded Sir Roger showed in his movements some slight indications of the nervous strain under which he was laboring.

In the formal charge Casement is described as of no occupation and no fixed abode.

Shortly after the magistrate had taken his seat, Casement and his fellow prisoner were shown into the dock. Casement's appearance was vastly different from that of the man who gained fame in 1912 by his exposure of the cruelties practiced on natives in Putumayo by a British rubber company. He sat in the dock, resting his chin on his hand and occasionally looking toward the magistrate.

When the attorney-general, in opening the case for the prosecution, mentioned the conferring of the order of knighthood on Casement, the prisoner dropped his head. The attorney-general then outlined the prisoner's career.

In opening the case for the crown the attorney-general charged that Casement had conducted a systematic campaign among the Irish prisoners in Germany.

According to the attorney-general, Bailey was born in Dublin and joined the Irish rifles in 1904. He served with his regiment in India and was honorably discharged. On the outbreak of the European war Bailey was called out as a reservist and sailed with the original expeditionary force to France. He was taken prisoner in September, 1914.

NORMAN HAPGOOD SUED FOR $350,000

Henry Lane Wilson (top) and Norman Hapgood.

Henry Lane Wilson, former ambassador to Mexico, has brought a $350,000 libel suit in the courts of Washington, D. C., against Norman Hapgood, the publisher. Mr. Wilson bases his suit on publications regarding the Mexican situation.

Berlin as the guests of the German government.

In the event that Germany won a sea battle he would land the brigade in Ireland to defend that country against England and if Germany lost the war the German government would give each man 10 to 20 pounds and free passage to America.

When the speaker added that Casement's offer was treated with contempt by a vast majority of the Irish prisoners, Casement smiled and glanced toward Bailey.

Sir Frederick Smith followed the story of Casement's alleged machinations in Berlin with details of his trip by submarine to Tralee where he landed on Good Friday with Bailey and a third man named Monteit, who is still at large. He also told of the sending of a ship with 20,000 rifles from Germany to Tralee and of how this ship was sunk at Tralee and the crew was captured.

The attorney-general here introduced a dramatic touch by having brought into the court a green rebel flag which he said Casement had brought from Germany to Ireland.

The calling of witnesses for the crown began immediately after Sir Frederick concluded his address. Sir Roger began to take a more lively interest in the proceedings. He seized a pad of paper which had been provided for him and started to take notes of the testimony.

Being Redistributed in Mexico and Along Border While Carranza Troops Continue to Move North to Occupy Bandit Ridden Area—Discussion Delayed Until Report is Made.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM)
Lake Itasca, Mex., May 14.—(By wireless to Columbus, N. M., May 15).—Three bandits, including Julio Cardena, the Villa leader, were killed in a skirmish with an American detachment, near Rubio ranch, 20 miles east of here today.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM)
Washington, May 15.—Major General Hugh L. Scott, chief of staff of the army, returned today from his border conferences with General Obregon, hopeful for the situation despite the fact that the conferences resulted in no formal agreement for co-operative action.

The chief of staff conferred with Secretary Baker, but made no formal report. Secretary Baker said General Scott stated he thought a favorable situation had been created by the conference.

General Scott will see Secretary Lansing tomorrow and meanwhile no steps will be taken to reopen diplomatic negotiations for a formal agreement with General Carranza.

Secretary Baker indicated, however, that General Scott thought there would be no great delay in arriving at an understanding and formulating a protocol.

Pending the ratification of an agreement Carranza troops are being moved northward into the bandit ridden portions of Mexico. The American expeditionary force under General Pershing is being withdrawn into strong groups on the line of communication where it will await the outcome of General Obregon's efforts to clean up the territory to the south. General Funston has mapped out a co-ordinate detachment for border patrol with the 35,000 men he will soon have available for that purpose exclusive of the 14,000 or so in General Pershing's column.

It was said officially at the state department today that no suggestions either formal or informal, had been made by the south and Central American diplomats in the conference which preceded the recognition of the Carranza government by the United States that their governments would view with approval intervention in Mexico by the United States. The conference voted unanimously for the recognition of Gen. Carranza. It was added, although the action was not binding upon any of the governments represented.

While General Carranza awaits a report from Gen. Obregon, further negotiations between the two governments are postponed. General Obregon now is enroute to Mexico City to report to Gen. Carranza.

Eliseo Arredondo, General Carranza's ambassador here, said today he did not expect any instructions from his government until Gen. Carranza had met General Obregon.

General Scott's discussions with officials probably will occupy several days. Not until they are completed will diplomatic conferences be arranged with Eliseo, Mexican ambassador designate, on the disposition of American troops and the question of protecting the American border from Mexican bandit raids.

General Scott was due to arrive early today. President Wilson returned from a week-end trip and plans were made for a meeting with General Scott later.

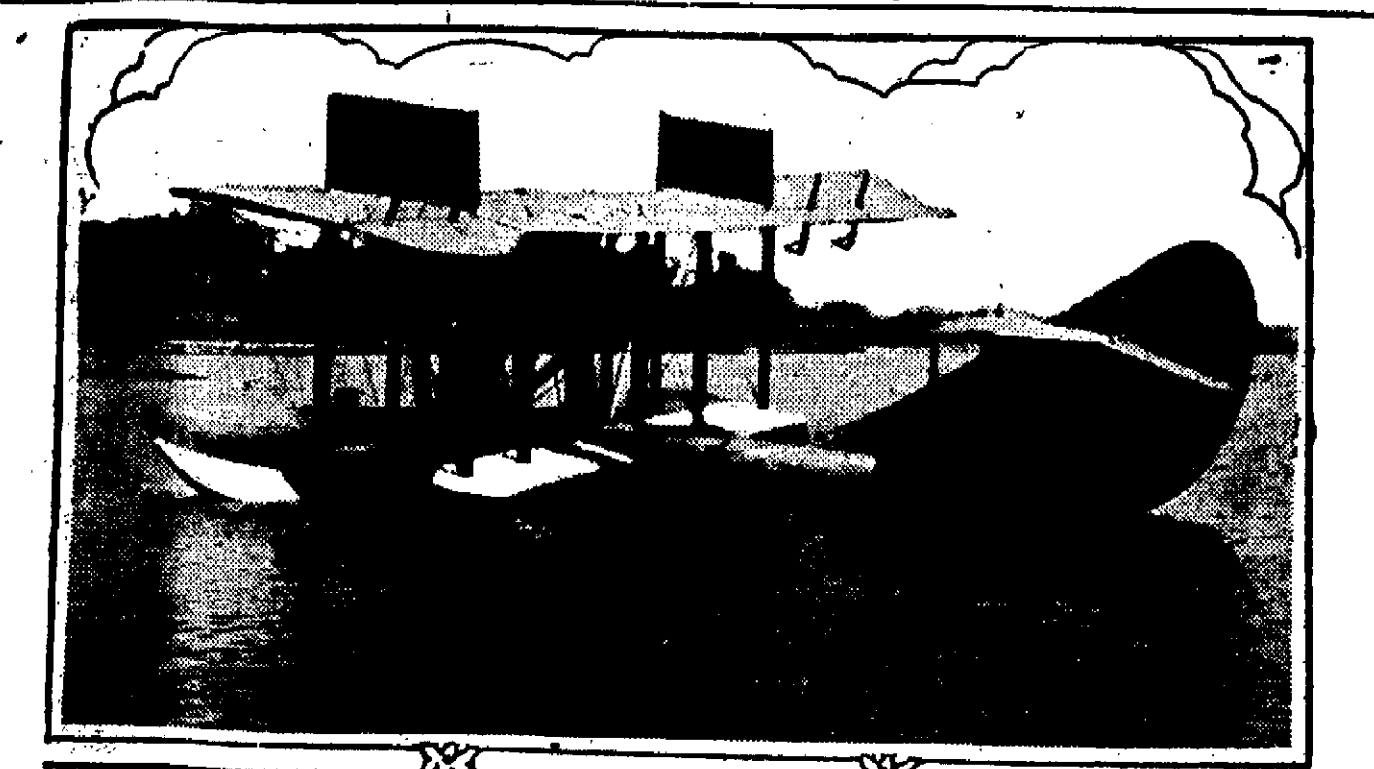

The war department today had a report from General Pershing saying the new concentration of troops ordered by General Funston after the El Paso conference was being conducted satisfactorily. This was interpreted as meaning the supply lines were being shortened. There were no indications today that National Guard of any other states would be called out to strengthen the border patrol.

Newark Girl's Brother Loses Life In This Airship Accident

Curtiss hydro-aeroplane H-10 in Potomac river. Two men were drowned and three others barely escaped with their lives when the giant Curtiss hydro-aeroplane H-10, on a flight from Washington to Newport News, Va., "threw a propeller" and plunged from a height of 200 feet into the Potomac river opposite Mt. Vernon. During the week before the accident the machine had broken several world's records, and had flown 106 miles an hour.

MRS. CAMERON STRUCK BY AUTO; MAY NOT LIVE

Mrs. Emma Cameron, wife of Geo. W. Cameron, who resides on R. D. No. 1, out of Newark, near Stadden's Bridge, was probably fatally injured when she was struck by an automobile in Columbus, Sunday night at 10 o'clock.

Mrs. Cameron, aged 28, is the mother of five children and was in Columbus visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Betteiger, of Broderick street. She was crossing High street when she was struck by a roadster driven by E. H. Echenrode, who is connected with the J. W. Echenrode furniture store in Columbus.

She sustained injuries which will probably result in her death, her skull was fractured, her back wrenched and she is thought to be suffering from internal injuries. She was taken to St. Francis hospital in a passing taxicab and Mr. Echenrode drove to the city prison. No charges have been placed against him. He and his companion told the police that at the time of the accident they were going less than ten miles an hour. He stated that Mrs. Cameron stepped from the curb directly in front of his machine, which passed over her body.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM)
Elyria, O., May 15.—The directors of the chamber of commerce are organizing a builders' association to be capitalized at $250,000 for the purpose of building 2,000 houses in this city. It was reported that the city could use 2,000 houses which would increase the population 10,000 within the next few years. Local factories are unable to secure sufficient help. Hundreds of men employed in local factories would move, but there is not a single vacant house in Elyria.

BELIEVES BODY DESTROYED BY AN EXPLOSION

That Charles Good, the Elyria boy who lost his life last week, when the Curtiss aeroplane fell a distance of 60 feet into the Potomac river, was killed before the craft struck the water, is the belief of Mrs. Alice Good, his mother, who spent Sunday in this city.

"I believe my boy's body was blown to pieces by the explosion of the aeroplane's engine, which occurred just before the machine struck the water," Mrs. Good said. "The Potomac river has been dragged thoroughly in the vicinity of the accident, but the bodies of the driver of the machine and my boy have not been found."

Mrs. Good accompanied by her daughter Miss Dottie Good, ticket seller at the Mazda theatre, have returned to her home in Elyria. Mrs. Good came to Newark expecting to join her daughter and go to Newport News to take charge of the body when it was found but word reached her here that the body probably never would be recovered.

Young Good was a Newark visitor several weeks ago and left here to join the Curtiss Aviation school. He had only made a few trial trips before the accident occurred which resulted in his death.

The burning came immediately after the negro's trial had ended. The jury had returned a verdict of guilty, giving him the death penalty. Then some one started the cry of "get the negro." It was quickly taken up by all of those from that part of the county where Mrs. Fryar was killed, and Washington was then seized.

ROCKEFELLER TELLS OF WORK IN COLORADO

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM)
Cleveland, May 15.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Major General Leonard Wood and Assistant Secretary of the Navy Frank D. Roosevelt were speakers at today's sessions of the international Y. M. C. A. convention here and their presence caused unusual interest in the day's program of the organization.

Rockefeller spoke this forenoon at the general convention on "Every Christian at Work for His Fellow-men." He told of welfare work being done in the mines of Colorado which are owned by the Rockefeller interests. He will also speak at the industrial section this afternoon.

General Wood and Secretary Roosevelt will appear this afternoon at the army and navy section.

Rockefeller in his morning address told the delegates how to organize a Christianity "trust" which he declared would sweep the forces of evil out of competition. He scored ministers who preach "flowery beds of ease" religion, rapped partisan denominationalism and stepped outside his subject to take a fling at business men who are fattening their bank accounts on the selfish materialism of our country stands in marked contrast to the spirit of the men and women in Europe pouring out their all on the altar of devotion.

The city Ministers' Association adjourned their regular meeting to hear Rockefeller, whose speech was stopped as the ministers filed into the hall. Rockefeller twitted the ministers for coming late. "Evidently the ministers had a copy of my speech and timed their coming to get in after I had finished talking about them," he said. The convention roared.

CHURCH STRUCK BY LIGHTNING DURING STORM

[Special to The Advocate]
Etna, May 15.—The Methodist Episcopal church on Main street in this city was struck by lightning Sunday afternoon about four o'clock and the steeple was demolished. SEVEN NEW BISHOPS

Are Favored In Report of Committee On Episcopacy and a Warm Debate Follows—Proposed to Assign One Bishop to Korea Where Missionary Has Been In Charge.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM)
Saratoga Springs, N. Y., May 15.—The proposal to reunite the Methodist Episcopal church and the Methodist Episcopal church south, which have been separated since 1845, will be made the order of special business at tomorrow's session of the Methodist general conference.

The report of the special committee on federation, presented to the conference today endorsed the proposed unification, in the belief that such union would hasten the development of a truly world church. The reports recommend that the general conference be the supreme governing body of the reunited church and plan of unification be extended to any other Methodist bodies that may desire it, after the amalgamation of the north and south branches of the denomination has become effective. The report favors the organization of special conferences for the negro membership of the church, such negro conference to be represented in the general conference.

The presentation of the report of the committee on episcopacy, recommending the election of seven new bishops, or general superintendents, precipitated a warm debate. The report recommended that the offices of three deceased and two retired bishops be retained and that two new Episcopal areas be established, one in the United States and another at Seoul, Korea.

The report prepared the way for the immediate balloting for bishops of the church. One of the new bishops is to be assigned to Korea, where the work has been supervised by a missionary bishop and the other is to fill the new episcopal residence at Detroit, Mich.

MOTHER WAS HONORED BY NEWARK FOLK

Nature gave as her tribute to the mothers of the country a beautiful day, on Sunday, and there were few people on the streets who did not wear a flower and the oft seen white bud, added a touch of pathos to the bright blooms which honored the living mothers.

Nearly all the churches of the city had special programs with special sermons on such topics as "The Challenge of Motherhood," "The Wage of Mother" and "Mother." Several churches arranged to have autos to bring the aged mothers to church and take them home and another church gave each mother a carnation as a favor.

All the florists of the city report a large demand for all kinds of flowers, and not only were flowers seen on the laps of coats, but most of the homes were graced with flowers as gifts to the mothers. Carnations were scarce but the market was flooded with beautiful roses.

LARGE PROFITS TAKEN BY DELCO NOW IN MERGER

Dayton, O., May 15.—Private advice received here are a complete confirmation of the report that the Dayton Engineering Laboratories Company would be included in the merger of a number of concerns forming the $60,000,000 United Motors Corporation.

It is understood that the Delco, by which the local firm is known, had been watched by financial interests for some time. It is reported that its net earnings have been in the neighborhood of $2,000,000 annually, while in addition the company has profited by favorable decisions in patent suits which make it necessary for the companies manufacturing electric starters to effect settlement on a royalty basis for each mechanical unit they have produced. It is understood in commercial circles that this will assure cash statements aggregating $4,000,000.

Edward A. Deeds and Charles F. Kettering, President and Vice President and General Manager, respectively, will be affiliated with the new corporation, in advisory and director capacities it is understood. Mr. Deeds' telegram sent today in response to a query addressed to him in New York was as follows:

"That the Delco is to become one of the constituents of the United Motors Corporation is practically assured. This participation will not change in any way the organization methods or ideals of the Delco. It will mean extensive enlargements of the plant. The Dayton Engineering Laboratories Company, as a corporation, will remain intact. The only change will be in the common stock holding. It is probable that associated with the Delco in the new corporation, will be the Hyatt Roller Bearing Company, the New Departure Manufacturing Company and the Periman Rim Corporation. The affairs of the United Motors Corporation will be administered by representatives of the above associated companies. The new corporation is not controlled by any motor car companies. The Domestic Engineering Company, which manufactures a house-lighting system, is in no way affected."

TIED LOOKING WOMEN
Some women always wear a worn, tired look. It is the outward sign of nervousness, neurasthenia perhaps, with its characteristic symptoms of worry, headaches and sleeplessness.

Overwork, grief, undue excitement, the late hours and nervous strain of a strenuous social season, lack of outdoor exercise, any of all of these may be responsible for the trouble but the most common cause is at this season of the year is the grip.

Whatever the cause, if you feel the need of more strength, try the great non-alcoholic tonic, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. As the nerves get their normalment from the blood the treatment must be directed toward building up the blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills act directly on the blood and with proper regulation of the diet have proved of the greatest benefit in many cases of neurasthenia. A tendency to anemia, or bloodlessness, shown by most neurasthenic patients, is also corrected by these tonic pills. Your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills or they will be sent by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes $2.50.

ALL READY FOR THE BIG PARADE TO ZANESVILLE

The final meeting of the automobile club to prepare for the Zanesville trip will be held in the Assembly room of the court house Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. It is desired that all auto owners, whether members of the club or not, be present on that occasion.

Many machine owners have called up members of the committee asking if they could decorate their cars with advertising banners. To this query the committee answers that machine owners may decorate their cars in any way that they desire.

There is to be several novel surprises in store for those who participate in the big parade. The Buckeye band of twenty pieces held a special rehearsal yesterday afternoon and selected a number of late compositions for the occasion.

The parade will leave the public square promptly at 12:30 Thursday afternoon. Places in line will be assigned the bands, speakers and those having special stunts. The Linville road will be followed to Linville and thence down the National road.

As stated previously a speed of not over twenty miles per hour will be maintained until the outskirts of Zanesville are reached and all drivers are warned to observe all rules laid down by the tourmaster. This is imperative in order to avoid accidents.

It is requested that all cars be decorated in some manner. Much interest is being taken in that part of the affair and there will be some ingenuity displayed when the parade is seen leaving the city.

The Zanesville Sunday News of yesterday had the following: "Newark autists, who will visit Zanesville next Thursday as the guests of the city of Zanesville and the local Chamber of Commerce, will 'do the job on brown,' as they now plan to have in the neighborhood of 400 automobiles in line," says the Zanesville News. That they will be royally received here goes without saying. The bond of affection between Newark and Zanesville now is about as thorough as the feeling of rivalry once was."

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

Grandma kept her locks dark, glossy and thick with a simple mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandma's treatment, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time, by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

BIG CROWDS WATCH MECHANICAL DOLL IN DISPLAY WINDOW
Edward A. Besides his widow he leaves one son, Frank Kitzmiller, now on a business trip in California; four daughters, Mrs. Alice K. Reynolds, Mrs. William W. Miller, Mrs. Henry H. Timken, of Canton, O., and Mrs. A. Ralston Matheny; also two sisters, Mrs. T. Warren Myers and Mrs. G. Livingston Ryder, of New York City. Fifty years ago this spring he located on a farm southwest of Newark where he remained until eleven years ago when he moved to his present farm on the Mt. Vernon road.

On April 7th, 1870 he was married to Miss Josephine Evans of Delaware county, Ohio and to them were born seven children, one having died in infancy. The widow and following children, Clara May, Bertha Maude, Mabel Idella, Robert Earle, Guy Lee and Florence Ethel are left to mourn their great loss.

James M. Duesthimer.
In loving remembrance of our dear brother, James M. Duesthimer, who was so suddenly called home, Saturday, May 16th, 1916, leaving to mourn his departure a wife, one loving daughter, Alta, two sons, Loren and Ray and two dear grandchildren, Florence and Lenora. Also a sister Mrs. Coe of Brownsville and two brothers, J. K. of Newark; K. and H. E. Duesthimer of near Linville.

Although the call, "Child come home" was so unexpected, yet we believe he was ready and willing to go. Many years ago he was born into the Kingdom of God's dear Son and had an experimental knowledge of sins forgiven, and rejoiced in loud praises and adoration to the Dear Saviour. Who so wonderfully saved him. His strong faith in the merits of his Redeemer and Saviour are ever retained and we believe today he has obtained the robe and crown which is promised to those that love him and is reunited with the many dear ones: father, mother, one baby sister and so many of his kindred and friends in "Our Father's dwelling." For John says that "having loved his own that were in the world, he loved them to the end and that he would come again and receive them unto himself in the house where the many mansions are. We will always cherish fond recollections of him and mourn his departure, but rejoice in his release from the sufferings and the sorrows of this world. Those of us who remain behind are admonished again that life is so short and death so sure to come. Let us make it the great concern of our life to be also ready, whether it be morning, noon or night the call comes.

Good bye till we meet again. Rest for your tired hands. Rest for your weary feet. For the race of life is run. Rest for your aching head. For the cares of life are o'er. Rest for your broken heart. On Heaven's Eternal Shore.

He was connected with the Rock Island for 25 years in the capacity of master mechanic and superintendent of one of the divisions.

Three years ago he retired from railroad work and became a member of a Chicago firm known as the Railroad Supply Co. He was a thirty-second degree Mason and a Knight Templar.

Tanlac is equally as effective in liver and kidney troubles, catarrh and rheumatism, and as a spring and nerve tonic, and system and blood purifier has no equal. If I Were Wilson.

That there is a growing resentment among Germans of the United States at statements that they are un-American and opposed to President Wilson, is being made evident as the effort grows to have them play into the hands of anti-Wilson political leaders. The Germans are great admirers of Maximilian Harden, world famous German editor. This concerning him is significant:

"Berlin—After figuratively taking the public's breath away two weeks ago by a daring article headed 'If I were Wilson,' Maximilian Harden on Saturday returns to an exhaustive defense of President Wilson, his policy and the entire American standpoint. In a leader in The Zukunft entitled 'The Real Wilson,' Herr Harden praises President Wilson as a man of high moral and high spiritual character of whom we might be proud if he were ours. What the writer characterizes as 'lazy ignorance' is represented as chatter from the mantle of would-be-patriotism, which in reality has nothing in common with genuine patriotism when President Wilson is assailed as he frequently has been.

"Ninety-nine one-hundredths of all the so-called war literature," Herr Harden continues, 'should be sent where it belongs—to the paper mills—and the public should return to books from which a wide-awake spirit speaks, including President Wilson's 'The New Freedom.' Then perhaps pure common sense will return to you and awaken you to the duty of respecting the dignity of foreign peoples.' Herr Harden follows with a brief character sketch of President Wilson in which he calls the President a brave opponent of evil and abuses and alludes to him as actuated by a love for his people and possessed of the will to lead them to the heights of his ideals after they had gotten into the swampland. 'Germany,' he adds, 'should be ashamed of people who slander him because they have read calumny in newspapers.'"

Autos and Children.

Here is the kind of thing that happens day after day in the public highways. A wagon or automobile is drawn up by the side of the street in some neighborhood thickly populated with children. An automobile comes along at a good rate of speed. From behind the standing vehicle a child dashes across the street in the path of the machine. It often happens that the motorist cannot stop in time to avert an accident.

This often happens in districts occupied by aliens, but it may occur anywhere. Where families are large, a hard working woman has no time to look after her scattered brood. Children cannot safely play in the streets. They should learn about these perils the day they are able to understand the first word of

THE TOWN BEAUTIFUL MOVEMENT

The prevailing mode of town development for the past 25 years in progressive towns has been to lay out streets in checkerboard form at right angles. Some theorists of civic progress have advanced the idea of late that a lay-out of curving streets is more beautiful. They point to German cities that followed this plan to a large extent before the war. The right angled plan they condemn as too stiff, formal and geometrical.

In towns having hills or bluffs, curving streets are frequently needed to conform to the lie of the land, but there are some practical objections to them on level ground. They usually make more steps for man and beast, though it is true that in some instances they do cut corners. They lead to irregular shaped lots, and promote a more scattered development of the town necessitating larger expense for street and sidewalk and sewer development.

The laying out of streets is a matter to be strictly controlled by municipal authorities.

In the more progressive towns it is usually so regulated. In some of the older and less advanced places, there is a disposition to allow real estate men to run streets in any cross-cross way that will produce the most house lots. Straight streets connecting with each other directly across a town have a beauty of their own. If well planted with trees, long and pleasing vistas are created, making a harmonious whole, and giving an impression of space and dignified arrangement.

A great number of cities have of late taken up the idea of town planning boards. Few men would think of constructing a house without a plan. If it is a house of much value, they call in a first class architect. But until within a few years, most towns were content to grow without any publicly adopted plan for development. The result is frequently crazy patchwork streets, the lack of suitable park land, the failure to secure lots needed in the future for schools and other public buildings, for which high prices will have to be paid later.

American Prestige.

(Philadelphia Record.)

We trust the Republicans will not wholly ignore a dispatch from Amsterdam which quotes The Volkszeitung, of Cologne, as saying that President Wilson had scored a great diplomatic success in the submarine issue with Germany and had assured his re-election.

Whether the German paper is of much importance or not, and whether it is quoted correctly or not, are of secondary importance. We should be glad to know that the fact was recognized by leading German newspapers, but if it is not the fact will remain a fact, just the same.

The prestige of the American Government never stood higher than it does now. Bitter things are said about us in Germany, and also in England, but the leading neutral nation cannot possibly give satisfaction to the belligerents while the war is raging. They would be more than human if they did not, on each side, desire us to get on and then get or ought to get. Each side is trying to bend our neutrality to suit its own interests. That is inevitable.

But after due allowance is made for the fact remains that in the interests of its own citizens and of humanity and international law, the Government of the United States has withstood the most powerful of the belligerents in this greatest of wars, and has obtained from its concessions of very great importance to neutrals and to non-combatants even of hostile nations. Germany exaggerates the value of the submarine weapon, but that does not affect the significance of the fact, that infuriated as Germany is by the destruction of its commerce and the intercepting of food supplies, she nevertheless is moved by the firm and continuous, though pacific, pressure of the United States to promise the discontinuance of the indiscriminate warfare of submarines upon commerce. An Amsterdam dispatch says that orders to that effect have been issued to the submarine commanders, and in the case of the Sussex Germany recedes from its original proposition, admits the sinking by a German submarine, concedes that it was in violation of the previous engagements of Germany, expresses regrets offers indemnity.

and has disciplined the commander of the submarine.

This is a great achievement for diplomacy without power or the threat of it. One will have to search diplomatic history long and carefully to find any such concessions wrung from a powerful belligerent in the heat of the contest.

But American diplomacy has exacted a no less important admission from Great Britain. The American steamer China was stopped on the high seas and 38 passengers taken therefrom by a British cruiser. Our first protest was met by a defense of this action. We renewed the protest and pointed out to the British Government the complete worthlessness of its defense. The British Government has retracted, and the 38 enemies taken from the China have been liberated. We have in a few weeks scored two brilliant successes without bluster, or bluff, or rattling the sword in the face of any nation. We have done it by the moral force of being right, and absolutely refusing to desist therefrom. Nothing that we could have done with arms would have so enhanced the prestige of the United States, and the American people will express their recognition of this in November.

Confidence or Consequence?

Women have voted in New Zealand for twenty years. The lowest death rate for babies in the world is in New Zealand. Women also vote in Norway, Australia, Sweden, Denmark and Finland. The lowest death rates for babies in the world are in these countries.—New York Independent.

The Views of Hughes.

As to the present political views of Charles Evans Hughes no specific evidence is at hand except that furnished by the progressive judicial opinions written by him since reaching the bench. But going back five years a reasonably complete inventory can be made of his political ideas when politically alive. By inference, catching the color of his mind, it is possible to form some sort of opinion of what he now thinks in so far as he permits himself to think.

HINTS FOR PROGRESSIVE FARMERS

The Board of Agriculture of Ohio reports many thousands of dollars worth of free Washington trips pledged by the Corn Boys of Ohio who will enter the Corn Contests this year. Every farm boy should fill out blank at once and mail it to J. R. Clarke, director of junior contests, Columbus, Ohio. Boys are urged to write to Mr. Clarke at once making application and girls may enter the domestic science contest.

Revised Rule No. 8 makes it possible for your boy to raise his acre of corn right in your own corn field. It makes it possible for him to work with you all of the time exclusive of the cultivation of the acre. Read the rule—urge him to enter—he has everything to gain and nothing to lose. Here is the rule:

Rule 8 of the Corn Growing Rules has been revised to read as follows: "The contestant shall assist in doing or shall do all the work on the acre, such as planning, manuring, fertilizing, plowing, preparing the seed bed, and all the other work up to and including the planting, but from the time the corn is planted, up until the time of the husking, the contestant shall do all of the work on the acre. The contestant may have assistance in husking the corn."

Farm boys, read revised Rule 8 very carefully. If you help your father, your acre can be in the same field of corn with his.

We have trips in every corner of the state. We will get more. Send in your entry now. Help father get ready and plant the corn—BUT SEND IN YOUR ENTRY. Get your blanks from your Superintendent of Schools or write to us for them. Enter the Corn Contest and this enters you automatically in the Essay and Stock Judging Contest at the State Fair. Write for particulars. Write for Rules and Entry Blanks immediately if you have none, to J. R. CLARKE, Director of Junior Contests, Columbus, O.

Selling Clean Milk. It is not difficult to produce clean milk. If possible, use a closed top or hooded milk pail that catches only about one-third the amount of dirt that the open pail does. Use a good strainer. When milking has been completed, remove the milk from the barn promptly. If milk is sold, place the cans in a tank filled with cold water until they are hauled to the market. Stir the milk at frequent intervals during the first hour, then place the cover tightly on each can.—American Farming, Chicago.

Old Dobbin Replaced.

The days of old Dobbin as the beast of all work on the farm are numbered, so far as the heavy work on the farm is concerned, the tractor will take his place. A tractor of the size to meet the needs of the farmer, as well as serviceable and as economical as the larger tractors is what is demanded by the farmers. The motor and size must fit the work at hand to give the best results.—W. R. Sanders, Kansas Agricultural College.

Good Farming and Farm Life. "Good farming not only pays the farmers' obligation to society but also to himself and to his loved ones. It means a farm home free from the shadow of a mortgage. It means a farm home in which there are more of the good things of life—music, pictures, good reading, a furnace, bath-room, etc. It means big red barns and more livestock. It means better public highways, better schools, country churches and a hundred other things that will make country life really worth while.

Whatever it is that you desire most carefully and then, taking the whole family, the horse, the pigs, cows, chickens, rain and sunshine into confidence as never before, let's win!"—American Farming, Chicago.

Auto Trailer on the Farm.

"The automobile trailer is the newest big adjunct to farm efficiency. It protects the automobile from the abuse of overloading, scratching, soiling and similar injury, and makes the automobile more efficient by permitting it to do double duty," says Glenn G. Hayes, editor of American Farming. "The trailer has been tried out and found to be practical and necessary for the highest efficiency, and has therefore come to stay. There are fifty makes already on the market and hundreds of farmers are investigating and buying."

Preparedness in New York.

Dr. John H. Finley, New York State Commissioner of Education, opposes the bill providing military training for schoolboys, not because he is against such training but because he believes that the law ought to apply to all boys between the ages of 16 and 19 years, whether regularly and lawfully at work, or not. Led by the Governor, militant preparedness in New York is going strong.—Springfield Republican.

England and Ireland.

If Great Britain would ever descend to learn anything from the experiences of other countries she might gain a useful lesson, so far as Ireland is concerned, by studying the manner in which the United States handled the problems growing out of our civil war. There was no hanging or shooting of the leaders of the unsuccessful rebellion. Jefferson Davis, Alexander Stephens, General Lee and all the other high officials civil and military officials were treated with consideration and leniency, and ended their lives in peace. Great Britain adopted the same policy toward the Boers. What military insanity has led her to such stupid brutality in Dublin passes all comprehension. The evil consequences are bound to be lasting unless Home Rule is speedily put in effect, as Premier Asquith is said to contemplate doing.—Philadelphia Record.

Dealing With England.

It is now our turn to deal with England. We have several grievances against Great Britain. The seizure of important American mail and holding it for days has yet to be explained. The seizure of meat ships and merchandise consigned to neutral points has also to be explained. These marine depredations are only acts of piracy. Great Britain, feeling so sure of American friendship, has taken undue and unjust advantage of the situation. Knowing that Washington was deeply harassed with strained relations with Germany and a more strenuous situation at home England has committed acts in violation of the neutrality laws which under other circumstances would lead to grave results.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

Another Limerick Contest.

An old man of Kalamazoo Had for years lived on celery stew; When he was asked why, He made this reply:

Gentle reader, it's up to you to give us the old gentleman's answer. Last week the Melting Pot asked you to tell what the "young lady of Wales" had to say when she was asked to wed and the replies submitted were very numerous. Several of the best suggestions were printed in this department of the Advocate Saturday. Two cash prizes were awarded, one to Mrs. C. G. Nevins, the other to Mrs. Martha M. Swartz. The Advocate will give a dollar to the reader who submits the best line in this week's contest. The editor is to be the judge. Answers must be received not later than next Friday at 6 p. m. The answers sent last week showed that some misapprehension existed as to the form of a Limerick. The first, second and fifth lines must rhyme. We are now ready for your contribution. Address it to the Advocate Melting Pot.

Mrs. R. K. Perkins of St. Louis, Mo., is entertaining friends at the Auditorium this afternoon with a theatre party.

With a surprise party, on Friday evening at her home in Mill street, Mrs. Florin H. Fletcher entertained a number of friends again, honoring Mrs. R. K. The event also proved to be the birthday anniversary of the hostess. The evening was spent in music and conversation, the prizes being awarded to Mrs. Murray Swartz and Mrs. Perkins. The hostess, too, received many beautiful birthday gifts.

A delicious luncheon was served at a late hour to the following: Mr. and Mrs. Murray Swartz, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Fletcher, Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Gray-Markham.

Rev. Raymond A. Houk, pastor of Holy Trinity Lutheran church officiated at the wedding of Mr. Chas. A. Gray and Miss Esther I. Markham. The ceremony occurred Sunday morning at 8:30 o'clock at the pastor's residence. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Gray of 277 North Fourth street, and is employed in the steel department at Wehrle's. The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Markham of 109 Maholm street. They were attended by Mr. Earl Evans and Miss Freda Stauffer; also by Mr. John Gray and Mrs. W. J. Johnson, the latter an aunt of the bride. The bride was tastefully gowned in tan messaline and chiffon and hat to match; with corsage bouquet of lilies of the valley and maiden hair fern. After which the bride and groom left for a short trip north. Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Gray will be at home after May 18 at 109 Maholm street.

After the dinner a hand painted shower was given Mrs. Sutton.

Everyday Etiquette

"My husband and I are planning to entertain a number of friends at dinner to meet a visitor. How shall I word the invitations?" asked Mrs. Newlywed.

"I should write them in this way," suggested her friend. "Mr. and Mrs. John Smith request the honor of your company at dinner on Wednesday, May the fifteenth at eight o'clock, to meet Mr. George Brown."

"I wonder," sighed the young hostess, "if it is proper to place the lady at the left or right of the man who is to take her in to the table." "The couples seated to the right of the host are placed with the women to the right of their escorts. The couples at the right are placed with the women at the left," replied the older woman, an expert in the ways of social entertaining.

Power of an Advertisement.

In the American Magazine is the story of a very wealthy man who made his fortune through an advertising scheme. In front of a small store in New York city a crowd was looking at a novel article exhibited in the window. The advertising man introduced himself to the proprietor of the store and said:

"You have something here that is worth a fortune if advertised. I want to advertise it."

"I don't believe much in advertising," said the man.

"I'll make you a proposition. If I triple the sales of the article in three months will you give me a half interest in the business?"

After an hour's talk the other consented. Inside of five days he called his new partner up on the phone and begged him to stop as he was sold out ten times over the capacity of his plant. The advertising man took a half interest in the business, rented a five story building, advertised for workers and inside of a month had increased the output of the article forty-fold and extended his field to other cities.

Barbers in Japan.

In Japan not only men, but women, go to the barber if there be any sign of hair on their faces. They do not permit even the soft down to grow, which the Japanese are often astonished to see left unmolested on the faces of some western women. Often, too, the eyebrows are shaved. In recent years the female barber has become a feature of the profession in Tokyo, most of these being the wives of barbers who wish to make themselves useful to their husbands, though some are independent. The 17th of every month is regarded as a barbers' holiday, when they close up shop and go to theaters and places of amusement, for which they are often furnished with free tickets, because they allow the playbills and other advertisements of the places of amusement to be posted in their shops free.

Too Much Refrain.

"Marriage!" said the sentimental man, with a sigh. "Heaven's greatest boon to man—a good wife. My friends, it is this that makes life possible, filling it with happiness and taking away all loneliness and misery. Marriage is one grand, sweet song!" he finished, with a rapturous air.

His listeners were impressed—all except a practical looking chap in one corner, who promptly rose to his feet.

"Well, marriage may not be exactly one grand, sweet song," he said slowly, "but it's certainly one grand, sweet refrain—refrain from tobacco, refrain from the theater, refrain from games, refrain from spending week ends—in fact, refrain from pretty well everything."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Business and Sympathy.

At a country market a lady went up to a stall where two fine geese were exposed for sale in charge of a country lass. The girl would not sell one goose without the other. Knowing that a friend would be glad to have one of them, the customer was easily prevailed upon to take both, but out of curiosity, after she had bought and paid for them, she asked the girl why she had refused to sell the geese separately. "If you please, ma'am," was the answer, "mother said as how the geese had lived together fifteen years and it would be too cruel to part them."—London Mail.

Paying the Piper.

"Dad, I want to be a musician."

"Then I'd be either a piper or a fiddler."

Why?

"When there is any paying to be done I notice they are always preferred creditors."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Weak Heart.

There is a form of functional cardiac trouble in which the heart is simply weak. Such a heart has strength only for the everyday needs of the body and has no reserve force to meet any emergencies that may arise, such as acute illness or unwonted muscular or mental strain. It is usually associated with general muscular weakness and lack of physical tone and always with abnormally low blood pressure. The low pressure is partly owing to the fact that the heart is too weak to propel the blood with sufficient force to fill the arteries and partly owing to the want of muscular tone in the arteries themselves. The person who has a weak heart must always remember that his condition is not hopeless and that he must not make it so by anxiety and hypochondriacal watching of symptoms. He may easily live as long as his neighbor if he takes care of himself, obeys his physician and preserves a cheerful disposition.

Toda live about 15 years on the average.

Our Boys and Girls

Nursing bottles should be so constructed that the inner surface should contain no corners to collect milk. After each feeding the bottle should be scrubbed with a bottle brush with soapy water and filled with water containing boracic acid until time to boil them before refilling with the next day's supply. They should all be scrubbed each morning before putting in a kettle and covered with cold water, and allowed to boil.

The best remedy for baby's cold is to give a dose of castor oil. Then apply camphorated oil under the nose, across the bridge of the nose and across the forehead. This often relieves the difficult breathing. Another method of giving relief is to wrap absorbent cotton saturated with melted white vaseline around a small stick, insert, grease well each nostril. Keep a small orange-wood stick for this purpose only.

But Soon.

"So you've been fighting with that boy again. Can you lick him?"

The Escape from False Hair.

No woman is truly beautiful without god hair. Nowadays few women wear false locks, so it is necessary to depend entirely on Nature's endowment for crowns of glory.

In the first place the hair should be kept scrupulously clean and well brushed. The next step is to massage the scalp with pure olive oil or yellow vaseline.

Of course, this makes the hair oily, but scalp massage is the secret of keeping the hair healthy and making it grow. It is not necessary to go to a beauty parlor—you can do it yourself each night in your room, and if you persist in a very short time you will find gratifying results.

Before dressing the hair and when taking it down, shake it out loosely, letting the air get to the scalp.

Now dip the fingers in the oil—just the finger tips—place the finger tips at the forehead where the hair first appears and gradually work them backward over the scalp in a circular motion.

At each turn let the fingers press deeply enough to move the scalp and work the oil into the roots. Then, with the same circular motion, still moving the scalp, begin at the base of the neck and work forward over the head to the forehead.

About fifteen minutes should be spent in this manner, every morning and night.

Wall Street.
(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM)
New York, May 12.—Developments over the week end imparted further strength to the stock list, prices showing substantial though variable gains at today's opening. Two new maximums were soon established. Reading rising a fraction over its previous best at 91 1/4, while Willys-Overland made a new record on its rise of 8 points to 272. Studebaker which featured last Saturday's active operations, made a further rise of three at 144, with advances of a point or better for Maxwell, shipping shares, Westinghouse, Airbrake, United States Rubber and Mexican Petroleum.

Extensive trading made no impression upon prices, the list with few important exceptions mounting to higher levels on broader operations. Reading and U. S. Steel were especially active, the former adding to its new record with an extreme gain of 1 3/8 at 92 1/8, while steel rose above $5 on the most substantial buying of recent weeks.
Canadian Pacific and other dividend rails were in further demand and minor issues of the railroad division came into renewed prominence. Motors continued strongest of the specialties, but war and semi-war issues were 1 to 3 points higher. Bonds were firm with a marked demand for Anglo-French.

The market shaded slightly in the final hour, but not before prices had established higher levels. The closing was strong.
Today's market was the broadest and most attractive in many weeks, with gains in all quarters of the list and a new high record for Reading.

SYNOPSIS.

Mary Page, actress, is accused of the murder of James Pollock and is defended by her lover, Philip Langdon. Pollock was intoxicated. At Mary's trial she admits she had the revolver. Her maid testifies that Mary threatened Pollock with it previously, and Mary's leading man implicates Langdon. How Mary disappeared from the scene of the crime is a mystery. Brandon tells of a strange hand print he saw on Mary's shoulder. Further evidence shows that horror of drink produces temporary insanity in Mary. The defense is "repressed psychosis." Witnesses describe Mary's flight from her intoxicated father and her father's suicide. Nurse Walton describes the kidnapping of Mary by Pollock and Amy Barton tells of Mary's struggles to become an actress and Pollock's pursuit of her. There is evidence that Daniels, Mary's manager, threatened Pollock. Mary faints on the stand and again goes insane when a policeman offers her whiskey. Daniels testifies that Pollock threatened to kill Mary and Langdon and actually attempted to kill the latter. Two witnesses describe Mary's flight to the street from the hotel and her abduction by men from a gambling place near by. Further evidence seems to incriminate Daniels.

MAGGIE HALE

"What is your name?"
"Maggie Hale."
"And your occupation?"
For a fraction of a minute she hesitated and then answered lightly. "I am out of employment just at present. I was private secretary to Theodore Barker."

A flicker of mutual amusement shot from Langdon's eyes to those of the prosecutor, and the spectators with a whispering rustle of interest leaned forward to stare, for "Texas" Barker was a striking figure in the city.

His millions amused by the masculine love of "taking a chance" would have made him notable anywhere, but "Texas" the gambler enlarged that notability to the spectacular, though his constant clashes with the police had recently robbed him of some of his more exclusive patronage.

To Mary Page alone the name Barker meant nothing, and the sudden eagerness in her manner was due not to the expectation of a bit of sensational testimony, but because this was the woman she had been supposed to be on the night when the police dragged her to jail.

This new witness was, however, no woman to bring from Mary anything but an uncontrollable shudder of aversion. For she was of the hard-mouthed, bold-eyed type whose profession it is to make herself attractive to men. She was the decoy of the great gambling hell back of the Hotel Republic, and Mary wondered vaguely what on earth she could possibly know of the tragedy, that after so many weeks seemed no nearer a solution.

The prosecutor wondered much the same thing, and the judge made a mental note to warn Langdon that witnesses whose characters were not beyond reproach detracted from rather than added to a case.

And he made that resolution in the face of the twinkle of amused recognition that Maggie Hale had shot him when she took the stand. For all kinds and all classes met at Barker's, and it was with this famous place that Langdon's first question dealt.

"As secretary to Mr. Barker you must have been frequently at his establishment back of the Hotel Republic, were you not?"

"I was," the witness answered readily. "But mostly in the daytime. I had my evenings free."

"There were evenings when you were there, though, were there not?"
"Oh, lots!" Her tone was freighted with easy amusement. "Sometimes I met up with a party for dinner or a show, and then we'd drift about to try and bank at The House."

She smiled, and several men in the courtroom smiled too.

"Miss Hale, were you a friend of James Pollock?"

"I knew him; knew him pretty well. He was at Barker's a good bit."

"Were you at Barker's on the night that he was shot?"

"Yes, but early. Somebody tipped me off that the air was fresher at a cabaret."

A snigger of repressed mirth filtered through the room at this hint of the big raid, but Langdon frowned.

"Had you seen Mr. Pollock that day?"

"No. Not since the night before."

"Miss Hale, isn't it true that you were to have joined the supper party for the company that Mr. Pollock and Mr. Daniels were giving?"

"No. I wanted to, but he said I was purely theatrical. Then I let him I would come anyway."

"Why were you particularly anxious to attend that party—on Mr. Pollock's account?"

"Not on your life! I knew that there was going to be some crooked work pulled off, but I couldn't prove it. I—I had a grudge against someone who was in on it, and I wanted to queer the deal."

"Will you tell us please what that deal was?"

The woman twisted her hands together nervously, and her eyes darted among the spectators as if searching for a menacing face, then she said slowly:

"The deal wasn't pulled off, and I'd rather tell it without any names, if I've got to tell it. I'm not keen about snitching on people."

"I think you may tell it as you please. Should it become necessary to reveal the name I will ask for it."

"That's the ticket. Well, you see it was this way."

Miss Hale settled back in her chair, as though she really enjoyed the interest she was creating.

"Barker knew a fat lot of crooks of all kinds, and he had one pal called Budge Dudley who—wasn't all he might have been, but Texas stuck to him because he'd helped him once a long time ago. It was the same with Larry the Josh. Larry had a soft job at The House, and Texas kept him for old time's sake."

"Well, that's got nothing to do with it, except that these fellows cooked up a plan by which they were to get a girl into Jim's party. This girl is about the cleverest dip in New York, and she was to lift the jewels and the watches and the money and everything she could get those swift hands of hers on, when the party got warmed up."

"It was a part of the game for her not to be seen going in or coming out of the hotel, so it was fixed to get the fire-escape down and let her go up it. When she came down again she was to be swung up into Barker's in a swing that is used sometimes to get important people out of the way if unexpected visitors arrive."

She smiled grimly.

"And then she was to walk boldly out the front door. Now this girl—"

"Sadie," breathed Mary Page suddenly, and at the name the witness paled and, swinging about stared at Mary.

"How do you know?" she began, but Langdon interrupted quickly:

"You say that the girl failed to carry out her part of the plot. Will you tell us why, please?"

"Why? Why, because Jim wasn't at the banquet and she couldn't get in. There wasn't anybody else there who recognized her, and she was counting on Jim. It was fixed with him, but I guess he forgot, so she was left out in the cold. She stuck around till pretty late, hoping to have a chance to get in on the game anyway, and then when she tried to go down the fire-escape she found it about as quiet as Broadway around eight o'clock. It was full of bulls and people and lights, so she had to go downstairs and out the regular way with nothing to pay for a wasted evening."

"Were you in the hotel that night?"

"I was. But not at the banquet."

"Where were you?"

"In the ladies' writing-room on the second floor," the witness answered

"Were the windows open?"

"Yes."

"And you could hear talking?"

"Yes."

"Was it a man and a woman?"

"No; two men. One was shouting pretty loudly and the other seemed to be promising him something or reassuring him. One voice seemed kind of familiar, but I didn't place it then because it was thick, like a man with an edge on. The other voice I didn't recognize. At any rate, I heard the lush say,

"Now beat it, and don't you let anybody butt in this time. Stay where I told you to, and for the Lord's sake don't get run in as a sneak. Do you get me?"

"I got you the first time," growled the other fellow. "What the dickens has got into you tonight, Jim? I believe you've got something up your sleeve you're not telling."

"Well," says the drunken voice, "you've been keepin' a few things up your sleeve for a long time. I haven't had an accounting for that money yet."

"At that the other growls something and they both come to the window."

"Could you see them?" Langdon's voice shook a little in his excitement.

"No. I couldn't see anything but their shadows. A tall one kind of wavering, and a shorter one."

"Did you hear any more?"

"No. Because just then I heard

"You say that the girl failed to carry out her part of the plot?"

without the slightest hesitation

"That's around the corner from the banquet room."

"How near is that to what is known as the 'gray suite,' do you know?"

"Of course I do. It's at the end of that corridor."

"Can you reach the fire-escape from it?"

"No. There's a fire tower at the other side of the building that you are supposed to use. But I didn't know that when I was seized with a desire to write letters in that room."

"What time did you go in there?"

"Oh, I don't know—round about eleven o'clock or so."

"Did you look out the window?"

"Sure I did, lots of times. I had to do something to prevent death from boredom with my own company."

"It was then that you found you could not reach the fire-escape, was it?"

"Yes. But I could see it and that was just about as important for me. All I wanted was to have the goods on a woman that had been blabbing too much about me."

"Miss Hale, did you at any time when you looked out at the fire-escape hear any conversation?"

"Yes."

"When?"

"Well, I wasn't wearing my wrist watch that night so I can't tell you the exact time. It was pretty late, after midnight. I had about decided that someone laugh in the corridor, and I know the banquet must be arriving, and I wanted to keep tabs on the guests."

"Did you see the defendant, Mary Page, pass?"

"Yes."

"Was she alone?"

"No; Daniels, the theatrical feller, was with her."

There was a slight pause.

"Now, Miss Hale," Langdon's voice was serious, but deep with an emotion that stirred the bewildered spectators with the sense of something big and important even though they could not grasp it, "did Mr. Daniels show any emotion when he passed the door of the gray suite?"

"I don't know as you would call it emotion exactly. He acted like a man that hears a familiar voice. To come down to facts, he stopped short and listened, and it wasn't till he noticed that Miss Page had stopped too that he laughed loudly as if to cover up something and hurried her along to the banquet room."

"Did you see Mr. Daniels again?"

"Yes; a little later. I went across to the window to get an eyeful of what was going on out there, but couldn't see a thing, and after waiting a bit I went back to the door."

"Was anyone in the corridor?"

"Yes. A kid was walking along towards the stairs and Daniels was standing by the door of the gray suite with one hand on the knob and with his ear flat against the panel."

"How long did he stand there?"

"Oh, a minute or so. At first I thought he was going to open the door. Then he shrugged his shoulders and walked a step away. Just then I thought I heard the sound of a window being closed and I ran towards my window. Before I got there, though, there was a scream and a shot and I ran out into the hall instead. Old Daniels was beating it down the corridor and Mr. Langdon here was standing at the door of the gray room."

"Did you join the crowd about the door?"

"Of course I did. I was one of the first to get into the room."

"Was the window still open?"

"No." The witness was very emphatic. Her mouth shut in a tight line.

"Now—be careful, Miss Hale—are you sure of that?"

"Sure? Of course I'm sure. One window was open, yes. The one to the left hand side of the room, but the other one, the one through which I had heard the talk, was closed. I'm dead sure of it—dead sure."

"Miss Hale, you say you were one of the first to enter the room. Will you describe exactly what you saw?" Langdon moved nearer to her, and himself listened attentively.

"I saw the body of Jim Pollock lying face down on the floor with a dribble of blood coming from under him, and a little ways off Mary Page lying in a dead faint, with her face all twisted up, like a person with a stroke. Mr. Langdon was lifting her up in his arms. Daniels was there, and the pretty boy that played the lead in the Page company. There was one of the hotel officials, too."

The memory of the ghastly scene did not disturb her at all. She was as calm as though she had been entertaining visitors at home.

"But you did NOT see, did you, the short man whom Pollock had been haranguing a few moments before?" The question was sharp and direct.

"No. Unless it was either you, Mr. Langdon, or Mr. Daniels. There was no other man there whom it could have been."

"Was the voice you heard mine? Speak frankly."

"No. Unless you're changed your elocution teacher. There was a slight titter. "It was kind of thick and nasal."

"Would you recognize it again if you heard it?"

"Yes. But I haven't heard it since."

"What did you do during the excitement?"

"I was too horrified to do anything for a minute. Then people kept pushing in, and so I went across and took another shut at the fire-escape."

"Did you see anyone?"

"Not on the fire-escape itself, but two men were in the alley staring up at the hotel. I could see their faces."

"Two men—are you sure there were two?"

"Yes. Of course I am, I could see them plain. One was almost under the arc light."

"Miss Hale," said Langdon, clearly and calmly, weighing every word, as though he knew the sensation his question would create, "was that man who stood under the arc light dressed in a light suit with a red tie?"

"He was!"

Avoid Catching Cold.

Colds are catching mostly from others. Therefore avoid people who have colds. Avoid people who have recently had pneumonia (within two years). Avoid crowds. Avoid hot places. Avoid badly ventilated places.

Colds can't be caught from oneself. Therefore keep the mouth, nose and tonsils clean. Avoid gorging with food or drink. Avoid alcoholics.

The germ is a factor, but the human body is also. Therefore avoid getting overworked or overcold in the entire body or any part thereof.

Colds cannot be caught when resistance is high. Therefore build up heat making powers by sleeping out, taking cold baths and eating moderately. Exercise daily in the open air.

If you have contracted a cold do not spit carelessly. Do not sneeze or cough carelessly. Destroy all nose and mouth secretions.

If the attack is accompanied by aches and fever avoid pneumonia by going to bed, decreasing eating and by taking a purge. Take medical counsel.

Care of the Hands.

To keep the hands smooth, soft and white wipe them until they are perfectly dry after washing them. The neglect to dry the hands is the commonest cause of the redness and chapping of the skin. If the hands have got into a condition where treatment is needed rub them thoroughly at bedtime with a mixture composed of tincture of benzoin, one teaspoonful glycerin, four ounces, and rosewater, three ounces. A similar treatment is to rub a small portion of cold cream well into the skin. This may be done during the day several times, and it is protective treatment against chapping when about to go out into the cold.

Wear loose kid gloves on the hands during the night after applying the lotion, as it aids in the softening and bleaching work. A teaspoonful of lemon juice, two teaspoonfuls of glycerin and six teaspoonfuls of water, all mixed together, make a serviceable daytime application for the hands after dishwashing, sweeping or scrubbing. Wear rubber gloves when doing this work.

Nebraska in Ancient Days.

In late tertiary times what is now Nebraska was a low lying and swampy region, covered with vegetation similar to that now growing in most climates much farther south. Camels and llamas were abundant, and during the pliocene epoch great ground sloths and glyptodonts, whose relatives now live in South America, inhabited western Nebraska. Mastodons with tusks on both the upper and lower jaws, much like those of the miocene epoch, still persisted. Short legged rhinoceroses remained abundant, and there was a great variety of wildlike carnivora. Saber toothed tigers and true cats, some of them considerably larger than the modern tigers, were also abundant. Three toed horses were still numerous, but the modern genus equus was not among them. One of the most curious animals of the time in Kansas and Nebraska was a gopher-like rodent that had two large horns on his nose. Its enormous claws indicate good burrowing powers, and its horns also may have been used in digging.—Argonaut.

Professional Secret.

Tramp—Thankee, mum. That is the best meal I've had for two days. But I knew I'd get a good feed here.

Housekeeper—You did? Is there any mark on my fence?

"No'm. Marks don't go any more. People rubs 'em out or paints 'em over."

"Then how do you know?"

"I hate to give away the secrets of the perished, mum."

"Then I'll make you an offer. Tell me how you know you'd get a good meal here and I'll give you another every time you pass through the town."

"That's fair, mum. I knew by the appearance of the yard."

"The yard?"

"Yes, mum. It has a mused up, slipshod look, as if the folks was the shiftless sort that's too lazy to keep themselves from bein' fooled by any vagabond that comes along. Good day, mum."—Pittsburgh Press.

What Word Rimes With Slam?

"Hello, sweetheart," said a voice as she took down the phone.

"Is that you, honey?" she answered.

"You bet it is. How are you?"

"Just fine."

"Well, you were looking mighty fine when I saw you last."

"Now you're flattering."

"No, I'm not."

"Tell me, Jim, what are you calling me for this time of day?"

"Jim! I ain't Jim! Aren't you Florence?"

"No, I'm not."

"Wrong number."

"Well, I think so."

ALL WRONG

The Mistake is Made by Many Newark Citizens.

Look for the cause of backache. To be cured you must know the cause.

If it's weak kidneys you must set the kidneys working right. A Newark resident tells you how. Miss Charles Korzenborn, 128 Fleck avenue, Newark, says: "I suffered from terrific pains in the small of my back and at times I was so dizzy I couldn't stand without putting my hand on the wall to steady myself. The kidney secretions were unnatural and caused me a lot of annoyance. I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Smith's Drug Store, and one box made me feel like a different woman. I can now do my work with ease and sleep soundly."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy. Get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Korzenborn had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props, Buffalo, N. Y. 5-15&18

DIRGE FOR A SOLDIER

A Famous Memorial Day Poem
By GEORGE H. BOKER

CLOSE his eyes; his work is done!
What to him is friend or foe man?
Rise of moon, or set of sun,
Hand of man, or kiss of woman?
Lay him low, lay him low,
In the clover or the snow!
What cares he? He cannot know.
Lay him low!

As man may, he fought his fight,
Proved his truth by his endeavor.
Let him sleep in solemn night,
Sleep forever and forever.
Lay him low, lay him low,
In the clover or the snow!
What cares he? He cannot know.
Lay him low!

Fold him in his country's stars,
Roll the drum and fire the volley!
What to him are all our wars?
What but death beckoning folly?
Lay him low, lay him low,
In the clover or the snow!
What cares he? He cannot know.
Lay him low!

Leave him to God's watching eye;
Trust him to the hand that made him.
Mortal love weeps idly by:
God alone has power to aid him.
Lay him low, lay him low,
In the clover or the snow!
What cares he? He cannot know.
Lay him low!

SPECIAL TO WOMEN

The most economical, cleansing and germicidal of all antiseptics is

Paxtine

A soluble Antiseptic Powder to be dissolved in water as needed. As a medicinal antiseptic for douches in treating catarrh, inflammation or ulceration of nose, throat, and ear, caused by feminine ills it has no equal. For ten years the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. has recommended Paxtine in their private correspondence with women, which proves its superiority. Women who have been cured say it is "worth its weight in gold." TWO ARE DEAD IN AUTO RACE; OHIO BOY WINS

New York, May 15.—Carl Limberg, an automobile racer and E. Pallotti, his mechanic, leading the field in the fifteenth lap of the 150 mile race for the Metropolitan trophy were killed when their machine crashed into a guard rail on the Sheepshead Bay track Saturday afternoon.

Both men were catapulted 100 feet over the rail and crashed to the ground about 30 feet below. The driver was impaled upon an upright piece of timber and was killed instantly. MISS EDNA LUTZ IS MUCH BETTER

Kept From Work by Grip, But Nervous Let Her Get Busy Again.

There is a most important message to nervous, overworked young folks from one of their number, who is well and favorably known in the neighborhood, her home being on Marietta road, Route 7, Zanesville. She is a valued employee of the National Biscuit company of that city. These are Miss Lutz's words, over her own signature:

"I am glad to state that I am able to resume my duties in the cake department of the National Biscuit Co., after being compelled to relinquish my work for nearly two months.

"I had the grip, which left me in a very nervous and debilitated condition. I tried several remedies without effect.

"My friends advised me to try Nerv-Worth. I sent to Bailey's drug store on Main street and secured a bottle. After taking one-half of it, according to directions, I found I was improving and by the time I had finished one bottle my nerves were steady, my stomach relieved, my digestion normal and I felt strong and vigorous.

"I advise anyone in a similar condition to take Nerv-Worth and especially young women.

Druggist T. J. Evans, Hotel Warden Block, sells Nerv-Worth and will hand your dollar back if this wonderful Family Nerve Tonic unexpectedly fails to help YOU. 5-15-17

SHELTER WAS SOUGHT FROM SEVERE STORM

PLEASURE SEEKERS DRIVEN TO COVER BY WORST ELECTRICAL STORM OF SEASON.

At Buckeye Lake Craft Scurried to Havens — One Boatman Had Narrow Escape From Capsizing.

A severe electrical storm visited Newark and vicinity Sunday afternoon about 3:30 o'clock and although the downpour was intense but little damage was reported over the city. When the storm broke the downpour of rain for the next fifteen minutes was excessive. The streets filled with water and in many places ran into the cellars. Limbs were blown from trees and shrubbery also suffered.

Bolts of lightning flashed at regular intervals and were followed by thunder. In one or two instances the sewers choked and the water backed up over the sidewalk. Hundreds of automobiles over the county were caught in the storm but the occupants had warning enough to get the curtains up.

The storm center of the county seemed to be at Buckeye Lake. Hundreds of craft were on the water when the sky darkened and the clouds appeared. With few exceptions they reached shore in time so that their occupants avoided a ducking.

Several thousand people were at the park when ominous signs of the storm appeared. There was quite an electrical display followed by sharp claps of thunder and then the rain came down in torrents. It simply fell in sheets and was one of the heaviest rains at the park for some time.

One young man in a row boat was caught nearly in the center of the lake. He started to pull for the lake piers and hundreds of anxious spectators watched his efforts expecting every minute to see him swamped. He was in peril every minute but by superhuman efforts finally managed to reach the Fred Mauger hotel pier, formerly the old Glass. The young man would not tell his name but he had a narrow escape from the locker of Davy Jones.

There were several motor boat parties on the lake the occupants of which received a drenching, but they all managed to reach the piers without any mishaps. Scores of autos had a rather strenuous time on the mud roads and many drivers were forced to wade through the mud and put on the chains.

The storm at Zanesville was destructive and severe. No death were reported but several persons were stunned, barns were burned, trees splintered and homes badly damaged. In three hours nearly two inches of rain fell. Hail accompanied the storm. The commercial lighting system of the city was disabled.

In Hopewell township, Muskingum county, just across the Licking county line, Edward Shiplett, a blacksmith, was struck by lightning while standing in the door of his home watching the approach of the storm. He was found lying on the floor by members of the family and is said to be in a critical condition. The home was not damaged.

SEASON FOR STRAW HATS OPENS TODAY

The ban is lifted!
Men may now wear straw hats with propriety.

Today marks the official inauguration of the straw hat for the season.

Local dealers are displaying some very nifty products of the straw hat manufacturer. There is the sailor-shaped with smooth or rough braid, which is considered quite the coolest thing. There are all kinds of Panamas in various shapes and then there is the Bankok which is an ever ready seller. Prices of the various styles range from two to five dollars, an increase over last year.

The plain black ribbon band will be worn to the exclusion of almost everything else. The bands come in Japanese crepe, in ribbed silks, in Rajah silks, in wash cottons and in elastic silks. They are made up in all colors.

A number of new straws were seen on the streets yesterday, but their owners were rushing the season in advance of the official opening today. Better dig out last year's straw or else call on the dealer and secure new headgear if you wish to keep abreast of the times.

HILL VISITS KING ALBERT IN BELGIUM

Former Railroad Man Returns After Trip to Front—Albert Confident of the Future.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM)
New York, May 15.—Samuel Hill, who has been associated for twelve years with his father-in-law, James J. Hill, in railroad enterprises and who has just returned from a visit to King Albert of Belgium, left today for Washington. Mr. Hill arrived from Liverpool last night on the steamer Philadelphia. He was in Europe five days, and said that he made the trip to obtain certain information, and said that he succeeded. He declined to discuss the nature of his mission.

Mr. Hill said that he dined with King Albert at the king's headquarters, visiting the firing line in western France and Flanders, visited the British fleet and saw some of the British harbor protections against submarines.

"King Albert, whom I had known personally for 20 years, was in excellent health and confident of having his country restored to him at the end of the war," said Mr. Hill.

Since his retirement from railroad business Mr. Hill has identified himself with the construction of highways all over the United States, the most recent being the Columbia highway between Washington and Oregon. His home is in Maryhill, Washington.

BETTER PHYSICAL DEVELOPMENT FOR RURAL CHILDREN

Speaker at Conference Says They are Under-sized—Only 15 Per Cent Use Milk.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM)
Indianapolis, May 15.—Today was an unusually busy one for the delegates to the national conference of charities and correction. Besides the usual sectional meetings, there were two general sessions of the conference and two extra events in the tea party which Charles W. Fairbanks gave for the delegates on the lawn at his home and an address by Mrs. Margaret Sanger, of New York at a special meeting this afternoon on "Birth Control."

That rural school children are not as well developed physically as city children was brought out in the paper read by Dr. Tallaferra Clark, of the United States public health service at a meeting this morning. The country boys and girls are underweight and under height, he said, largely because of diet. Fifty seven per cent of rural school children use coffee and only fifteen per cent milk, he said. Consolidation of rural schools and efficient health supervision is urgently needed, according to Mr. Clark.
